

01 TIGERS IN RED WEATHER

by Liza Klaussmann

The seductive debut novel by the great-great-great-granddaughter of Herman Melville takes us on a tour of the glamorous lives of a rich East Coast family plagued by secrets and lies. Set at the family summerhouse – a scene of jazz, martinis and moonlit conspiracies – it's an epic thriller sweeping across 50s and 60s America. A labyrinthine story told from five points of view, it sizzles with suspense, passion, betrayal and murder. Destined to be a blockbuster, it's already buzzing with interest from the Hollywood film studios. Picador; £12.99

02 THE PHOTOGRAPHIC WORK

by FC Gundlach
German photographer FC Gundlach captured everything that was glamorous about the 60s. He shook up fashion photography by combining the ordinary and extraordinary with spontaneity and playfulness. This sumptuous book of black-and-white and colour-saturated snaps, shot in the gritty urban streets of post-war Berlin or Paris and far-flung locations in Egypt, Kenya or Morocco, caught the spirit of the times and the longing for the new and exotic. It's packed with some dazzlers as well as more obscure discoveries. Steidl & Partners; £48

03 CONDÉ NAST TRAVELER BOOK

foreword by Klara Glowczeska

Great travel photography can shake and stir the soul and senses. Condé Nast Traveler brings together a retrospective of the most stunning images from its archive, including works by Helmut Newton and Brigitte Lacombe. Just sifting through the spirit-lifting pictures of distant and exotic places – from Costa Rica's unspoiled rainforests and Utah's desert stars to the tribes of the Amazon and the lions of the Serengeti – is sure to inspire you to wander. Assouline; £60

04 THE ROLLING STONES 50

After Keith Richards' entertaining page-turning memoir Life, it suddenly seems we can't get enough of the Stones. The greatest – and possibly the oldest – rock band is celebrating 50 years together with a new book. The 352-page tome with the cover of their iconic red tongue logo will hit stores on July 12th, the same date in 1962 when they played their first gig in London's Marquee Club. A must for Stones fans, it features over 700 photographs, many rare and unseen, on the road, behind the scenes and at home, with each band member's unfiltered perspective on a thrilling journey of 50 golden years of sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll. Thames & Hudson; £29.95

05 THE RECKONING

by Alma Katsu

Fans of The Taker can get their next fix of Katsu's second book in her gothic trilogy. A dark, sexy love triangle, it will seduce you from the first page. The chance escape of immortal alchemist Adair from his secret tomb in Boston, two centuries after immortal Lanore McIlvrae imprisoned him, disrupts Lanore's cosy life with her mortal lover. Century Publishers; £7.99

06 THE LOWER RIVER

by Paul Theroux

Theroux returns to familiar territory, the dusty, sun-beaten villages of Malawi where he once served as a Peace Corps volunteer. In his taut, tense tale, evocative of Heart of Darkness, Ellis Hock flees to Africa after his marriage falls apart. But the idyllic locale he remembers from long ago has become a despairing place, and his joyful escape soon turns into a deadly trap. Penguin; £10.99
